CALL TO HOST THE INMP CONFERENCE IN 2029

Applications are invited from interested museums, institutions, universities and cities to host the 13th international conference of the International Network of Museums for Peace, in 2029. A proposal form is available, in which you will be asked to indicate the scale of event you could organise and host, the likely costs for participants, the potential for including participants from non-OECD countries, and other relevant issues. INMP would promote the conference and give it a high profile, providing great encouragement to members, and to those in related networks, to participate in this conference. All financial considerations and budgets would be the responsibility of the host body. A regular 3-yearly cycle of international conferences is key to the essential networking of INMP, its members and supporters. It gives an opportunity for peace, history and museum professionals, volunteers, academics and activists from a local region and from around the world to make presentations, share ideas and network with each other. It can enrich the life of the host community and enhance its own witness for peace.
